Berry Pallets are designed so when one pallet is on top of a pallet with trays the pallet touches the tray tops evenly.

Stratis worked with some of the most successful berry picker/processors in North America to design a super heavy duty food grade plastic pallet that interfaces with major brands and styles of berry trays used today. These stack, rack and transport safely and last 10+ years in typical plant applications.

Soft berry processing companies using stacked plastic trays on custom made wood pallets are having huge problems with dirty, smelly almost rancid juice laden wood pallets. Insect infestations, tipping, sliding off of trays, breakage of trays by the tray legs, and worries that inspectors could come in and swab these wood pallets that are in processing areas and find something bad are a continuing concern.
